

Britney Spears forced to remain in mental ward

After a week filled with mayhem, motorcades and puppies(Well not puppies I just threw that one in), Britney Spears remains not only admitted at a local hospital but also now undergoing a 14 day extended stay in the mental ward. Poor Britney has unfortunately been unable to prove to her doctors that she is stable enough to rejoin the normal population and because of this must now remain in near isolation. She is under constant observation as she is still being deemed as a threat to others and her self (Yes you heard right they are saying she might be exhibiting violent and or destructive behavior). Keep in mind a lot of this is still being confirmed and much of it are rumors circulating from people whom claim to be close to the fallen pop icon. What we do know however is the fact that she's still not walking the street proves she's definitely still being held. If Britney could leave she very likely would.

Britneys parents now appear to be in full control of the situation with her father now having sole control of her estate and medical health. Britney is supposedly receiving the best care however only time will tell if it makes a difference. In some cases a stay in a mental institution can really put things into perspective however on the other hand it might not just make the person worse but infact they might begin to feel at home at which point you know that they really are crazy. No word has been given yet as to what Britney's daily activities include however considering her Pop Star reputation(yeah we know its fading) Britney is likely being kept from other patients whom could have a negative impact on her recovery. It would now appear that we may not actually see Britney back in public for anywhere from 1-2 weeks or maybe even a month.

Very likely Britneys parents will try to keep her out of the public eye for as long as possible meaning this really might be the end of Britneys days roaming Hollywood. We can all only really hope the Britney finally receives the help she needs and comes out of the madness she has evidently been fighting or rather losing to. No word yet has been given on if Britney has had visits any of her Siblings (Older Brother) or Jamie Lynn( Younger sister and star of Zoe 101 on Nickaloveon). One unfortunate and evident thing however is that Britney will likely not be regaining custody of her kids anytime soon, this recent development now leaves Britney at the mercy of Kevin whom has been very fair and civil in this entire matter meaning the amount she is currently paying in child support will likely double if not triple. Kids are entitled to 20 percent of their parents income meaning Britney might begin forking over more than 1/4 of her salary soon since taxes for the amount paid to Kevin come out of her remaining portion. Good Luck Britney.

About the Author

Mitch is the owner of Britney Spears News Flash, features many articles giving readers insight on the rise and fall of Britney Spears with 24 hour coverage. <http://www.britneyspearsnewsflash.com> More articles are available at Britney Spears News Flash Read More Now .

Source: <http://www.articletrader.com>