FTA Newbies

This article is for the attention of (fta) newbies who are finding their feet in the Internet World. Please do not take this article the wrong way as I was once classed as a "newbie on the net" I have now been online for just under 3 years and I am still learning.

There are so many different components to running a business online that we just have to sometimes get the basics and take action. I was listening in to an online seminar recently where one of the speakers a blogging expert called Mike Paetzold spoke about doing just that!

He said the three tools that you need to start a business are:

1. A good autoresponder to build your list
2. A reliable hosting company to host your domain name
3. A method to track where your traffic is coming from so that you are targeting your best traffic conversation article blogs etc.

The reason I have mentioned the above tools are simply I use them to build and grow my business each and every day. I have tried other tools, however through trial, error and a lot of money I have found the one's mentioned in my blog to be in my opinion the best to help me make money online.

They have good customer service which is a must for any newbie or seasoned online business builder. Just visit my blog click on the links and have a look at their websites; you will see that they are serious about helping you build your business.

I will be looking at other tools that will help the newbie in growing their business without spending too much money. Just add my blog to your favorite's list and keep visiting.
