

Things To Know About Raleigh

Located in North Carolina, Raleigh has accrued considerable drawing power in the relocation market. With a highly educated workforce and an abundance of employment, Raleigh is a city on the move. One of the most notable aspects of Raleigh is its position within the Research Triangle. The triangle is the name given to a huge research and technology park that encompasses the three cities of Raleigh, Durham, and Chapel Hill. Since the establishment of the research park, Raleigh has developed one of the country's leading technology based economies and has become known as one of the best places to live in America.

Education plays a strong role in the development of Raleigh. As one of the most highly educated cities in the nation, Raleigh is known for having the highest ratio of Ph. D's per capita. Its also known that in Raleigh almost 50% of the residents over the age of 25 hold at least, a B.A. This trend of high education has aided Raleigh in developing a dedicated and intelligent workforce that has led to its proliferation in the business world.

But Raleigh is not all business. The downtown core is home to one of the most lively and exciting nightlife scenes around. An abundance of exotic restaurants and unique shops for the background for a diverse and cultural community. If you are looking for entertainment, then Raleigh can provide you with a staggering number of things to do. From live theatre to professional sports, from concerts to museums and art galleries the list of things to do in Raleigh is inexhaustible.

With such a lively culture and thriving business sector its no surprise that Raleigh real estate is in high demand. The market here has remained strong for many years and shows no signs of weakening. As the number of high paying jobs in the research triangle continues to grow there is an ever expanding need for quality homes and services and Raleigh is dedicated to keeping up with and exceeding that need. It's a city with a bright future that is on the cutting edge of technology and research and is just a great place to live.
