

The Miniaturization Of Women

Small and thin items have been revolutionizing the electronic world, people want their cell phones and other electronic items to be small and thin. Now the craze for miniaturization has expanded into a mans sexual preferences. The man that wants small and thin electronic items also want a woman that is built the same way. Small and thin women have become the new rage. It is rare to see a woman who is small and thin without an attractive man at her side. The ideal woman is now the Asian female. She is naturally small and thin. But it is not fair to compare a woman to an electronic item. Women were not meant to be used and then put away like a cell phone. A woman has qualities that go beyond an electronic item. This new way of choosing a woman is destroying the social life of the woman who is not small and thin. Women are capable of losing weight and becoming thinner, but it is impossible for her to become shorter. The age of miniaturization is a wonderful advance in technology, but it should serve people, not destroy their self esteem.

A mans image of an ideal female is going through a weeding out process. Utility or usefulness has replaced old ideas." If you can't use it, lose it" has become a man's new motto and viewpoint. This is a terrible turn of events for the dream of a kinder and fairer world. Women that are not perfectly sized and shaped will become human garbage. This new trend must be stopped if we are going to have a society where all people have a chance of finding someone to love them.

Human nature has always been the determining factor. Men want their cell phones and women to be pleasing to the eye and touch. It means that in order to please a man, women have to be small and thin. Women will have no choice except to fit into that image. This new way of choosing a woman is not an explosion of selfishness, and a narrowing of desire. We cant blame men for focusing only on what is useful, and disregarding the rest. Excessive baggage is not needed in a fast moving world. The selective male prefers a woman that is small and thin. No longer will there be a place for large cell phones or tall and heavy females in a mans bedroom or life.
