

Get Around a High Jacked Web Browser

Get Around a High Jacked Web Browser

When your web browser gets high jacked it's not fun. Every time you open up internet explorer you get nothing but ads. Most of the time this is because you were not properly protected in the first place. Not to worry we have a fix for you.

The first step is to go out and download some free based software to fix the problem. Not to worry these are great programs that are very popular and contain no spyware. You should still purchase software to protect your computer and stop this from happening again.

First we will need you to open up your windows calculator. Hit the windows "Start" button on the bottom left and select "All Programs", "Accessories" then "Calculator". Now select "Help" and then "Help Topics" You will see a new window pop up. In the topic bar (That blue bar up above "right click" then select jump to url, now type in <http://www.windowvistarepair.com/downloads/downloads.php> . This will take you straight to a page that has many programs you can download to help remove the highjack software. Go under spyware and download and install Spybot Search and Destroy, run that program and 80% of the time that one program will remove the highjack issue.

The software listed on that download page is great but you get what you pay for. You really should download and install an internet security suit that includes virus and spyware protection. If you already have virus protection you still need spyware protection.

About the Author

For a listing of windows XP and windows Vista Spyware software check out our review section. For more great tips on XP and vista stop by our Vista Repair site.

Source: <http://www.articletrader.com>