

Fishing Tips for beginners

Is fishing right for you?

Personally I think fishing can apply to anyone who loves beautiful scenery and having a fun fight with fish. As long as you have around $50 to get started I say fishing is perfect for you.

Things to buy

Rod (buy one under $15, that includes the reel)

Tackle box

Hooks, strings, scissors, weights, ect...

With this as your start up your looking at a great start to fishing.

Place to Fish

A local lake would be a nice place, or anywhere where it is pretty known for fishing. I am pretty sure you have one or two buddies who fish ask them.

Where are Fish?

Fish are located mainly in shallow areas. the places with many plants have a variety of small to medium fish. If you want to catch the big fish i say take a boat and go deeper into the lake. Now you don't need a $30,000 boat to get to the middle. Try using one of those fishing/rubber/motar boats. My company actually sells them. Now if your looking for Bass go to rocky areas. For most other large fish you need to test your luck and go for it. You can try fish trackers but that is a form of cheating.

Baits VS Lures

When I started out I bought many baits and lures to test them out. The difference between worms and lures is that worms will attract small fish and certain lures will catch you that large mouth bass you saw on TV. For starters I would start out with worms and minnows, and when you start gaining experience I would start using lures. Be careful as %80 of the lures out there DO NOT WORK. From my seven years of fishing i can only recommend 5 Lures to you that bring easy results. Everything else actually tend to scare fish away. You can find links at the bottom of the page.

Lake Fishing

Get on a rubber/motar boat because you and I know you can't afford the huge titanic ones. Go to a unpopulated perimeter of the lake where there are no man made structures. Now cast your line down. Look around water to see any rocks or messy plants that might get your hook stuck. But don't go to waters where there is nothing you can see below but plain ground. If that's all your seeing then that means there are no fish there either. It's common sense "if I was a fish where would I be?" I would be in a place where I can be well hidden and protected.

Necessary VS Un-Necessary equipment

Your browsing through wal mart and you see this fish video surveillance that guarantees you to find large fish. I will tell you right now that underwater cameras are a complete waste of money. Many newbies will by these bad equipment and waste their money. Seriously, most lakes and rivers are pitch green, you won't be able to see a thing. I say go for the fish tracker.

Big Fish VS Small fish

Big fish are located towards the middle of the deeper waters and small fish are locate din the weedy and rocky areas. Bass are located in both waters. You should fish between 4Am - 11AM as these are the safest time to fish "sunrise".
